AMERICAN JOURNAL ON INTELLECTUAL AND DEVELOPMENTAL DISABILITIES

The American Journal on Intellectual and Developmental Disabilities (AJIDD) is among the top three journals in the special education and rehabilitation fields according to the latest industry impact factor rankings. The AJIDD reports current and critical research in biological, behavioral, and educational sciences. It is a singular, multidisciplinary resource in the causes, treatment, and prevention of intellectual disability. The premier journal in its field for more than 100 years, the journal is an essential reference and resource tool for health sciences and human services libraries. The AJIDD is targeted for researchers, clinicians, practitioners, students, and other professionals in intellectual and developmental disabilities.
